

DOUBLE TRAGEDY IN MAINE TOWN

Wife Strangled and Husband Ends
Life with Revolver Shot

PORTAGE LAKE, Me., Sept. 7.—A double tragedy was revealed here tonight when a selectman and other town officials forced an entrance to the home of Daniel G. Emery, a former resident of Boston, and found the bodies of Emery and his wife in one of the bedrooms. Mrs. Emery had been strangled to death in the opinion of the town authorities, and Emery's death was due to one or more bullet wounds in the head.

The body of the woman was covered by her night robe, and had the appearance of having been pushed into the corner of the room where it was found.

Emery's body was stretched on the bed and a revolver was clamped in one hand. His head was badly mutilated.

After a preliminary examination the officials reported to coroner William F. Buzzell of Houlton that in their opinion there had been a murder and suicide. The coroner will arrive here tomorrow and make an investigation. Meanwhile the bodies will be undisturbed.

The discovery of the bodies resulted from the anxiety of neighbors, who had seen neither Emery or his wife since last Wednesday.

Emery was about 50 years of age, and his wife was 10 years his junior. He moved here several years ago from Chelsea, and was known to have considerable money and some property. He was married two years ago in a Massachusetts city.

It was thought by the authorities that Mrs. Emery was killed Wednesday night or yesterday morning, and that Emery did not take his own life until last night when he realized that his wife was dead.

WELL KNOWN
Stock in Trade

Edmund Brown, manufacturer of the Warwick and the Lenox cigars, is missing. He has not been seen since Saturday, when he left his home on Hanover street, ostensibly for his shop on Market street. His wife says she does not know his present whereabouts and that she was not informed by him of his intention to depart from the city. Attachments have been secured on his property at his shop. His liabilities are said to exceed $3000 and his assets include only his tools and a small amount of stock.

Mrs. Brown said that her husband left home Saturday forenoon. She assumed that he was off for the shop where he employed two hands. He did not return to dinner, as is customary, and she has not heard of his whereabouts.

Several local friends of Mr. Brown, who advanced $100 on a note and who were aware of his financial difficulties, went to the shop Saturday with the purpose of attaching the property. Representatives of Boston wholesale tobacco dealers anticipated their visit and on the previous afternoon had attached the stock and benches.

Since the departure of Mr. Brown, it has become known that he has been involved in financial difficulties several months. At least three persons in this city with whom he was familiar have endorsed his notes. He is also said to be indebted to several firms that supplied him with materials for the manufacture of cigars.

Mr. Brown came to this city ten years ago to roll cigars for D. J. Regan, manufacturer of the D. J. R. cigars. He established himself in business about three years ago. His products, the Warwick and Lenox, are said to have had a good local call. Mr. Brown was quiet and unassuming and was exceedingly popular among his acquaintances. He originally came from Lockport, N. Y.

A gas stove which was in the room had all the cocks open, but only enough to make a moderate flame, where the gas lighted. The last seen of Mrs. Yoffa and her three children was on Monday night.

Discovery of the bodies resulted from the return home of the husband and father of the victims, Joseph Yoffa, who had been in New York since Friday.

An automobile containing two men, two women and a child, was ditched on Maplewood Avenue this noon and all of the occupants had a narrow escape from injury.

When abreast of Judge Emery's house the driver lost control of the machine and it went over the embankment, crashing through the fence into the field owned by Joseph Hett. All of the occupants were given a severe scare.

The machine was going slow at the time, and the cause of the accident is said to be due to a nut becoming

Two Automobiles Are Plundered by the Light Fingred Gentry.

Portsmouth is getting a bad reputation as the home of sneak thieves and all on account of the lax methods. During the past ten days two automobiles have had their machines robbed, while they have been left standing on Fleet st. From one machine, thieves even took the trunk from the rear of the auto and carried it away. Some one in authority has made a rule that the machines should not stand in front of the dining rooms on that street, which has forced the driver to leave them further up the street where it is dark and the sneak thieves have had a fine chance.

Church for Which Corner Stone

The First Methodist Episcopal Church in Portsmouth has recently made a final decision to change its location. For eighty five years the Society has met in religious and social life at the old brick church on State street. September first, of this year, the society gave possession of the old church to the Temple of Israel, and itself took up temporary quarters at Association Hall.

On Sunday, September the eighth, the corner stone of the new edifice, on Miller avenue, will be laid, by Methodist ritual. Dean Laurens J. Birney of the Boston University School of Theology, will preside and give the address.

The new structure is to be of sea-faceted granite and is to be ready for occupancy by December twentieth. The land on which the building is being erected was purchased in 1906 at a cost of three thousand dollars. The building itself will cost about $20,000. The contents of the old corner stone revealed the cost of the old structure: The lot cost $1,538; the mason work, $2,150, and the carpenter work, $1,730. Giving a total of $5,418.

Shipley W. Wilson was pastor 1829-27, during the time of building the old brick church. In 1828-29 John Newland Moffit became pastor and assisted much in reducing the debt. June, 1829, the New Hampshire Methodist Preachers met in this church and the New Hampshire annual Conference was born.

The Pittsburgh Post says it is reported that the New York gamblers have migrated to have do Grace. That town has one policeman, and it is safe to bet he knows his duty.

The New York Evening World says, tracing a man's bodily ills to ARAM's famous rib removal, which is now claimed to have wrecked his health, is the meanest thing the anti-feminists have thought up yet.

The Chicago Record-Herald says now it is said that the common house-fly carries the egg of the parasite that causes the lookworm disease. The fly's terrors are increasing so that we may soon consider it a worse pest than the mosquito.

The Philadelphia Inquirer well says: Isn't it strange how so many of these "Honest" Toms and "Honest" Tims and "Honest" Johns in politics only bear that sobriquet until some one starts in to make an investigation?

The Boston Transcript says feature of the new parcels post system will be a grading of postage rates by zones, as well as by the weight. The zones will vary from fifty miles and less up to 1,600 miles and more. The striking of stamps in accordance with this schedule will help to make us all more sure of our country's distances. For prepayment, is insisted upon and all must know their geography.

Uncle Remus' Magazine remarks we sometimes hear advice criticism on the efforts of the government to exercise supervision over individual projects dear to the hearts of some special group of capitalists or promoters, and it is not unusual to hear these men inveigh against "paternalism" and "undue censorship." But when it is generally known that the supervision is an absolute necessity in order to protect the public from the invasion of the get-rich-quick sharks, the indeed the owners of honest enterprises should be eager and anxious for government oversight; whenever and wherever possible. Through their use of the mails the get-rich-quickers and their methods can be traced, and themselves tracked to their lairs.

The Indianapolis News says the chance a man has to make a new start in some other place, some city or state a little farther on, is a prospect subject for discussion. The topic has been brought up persistently by inquirers into the high cost of living and the migration from farm to town. Every now and then some easterner, who has gone west to grow up, but who, instead has become somewhat "united financially," writes a discouraging letter home advising his friends to stay away from the place to which he went. The advice "Go West" has been followed with more or less disappointment since the days of forty-nine, and the disappointment judging from the letter—seems to be growing with the years.

Not long ago the word was sent back that Seattle and Portland were not booming, but that, on the contrary, there was a lack of work. Now comes a man from San Francisco who says that that fair and much-admired (by itself) city has no less than 50,000 idle men walking streets. This idleness he attributes partly to exaggerations of the demand for labor to build the Panama exposition city, and partly to a railroad strike. The latter is not conclusive, as many another city in the east has suffered similarly. As to the former, San Francisco should not be denounced. Floating laborers make a practice of drifting from city to city, being attracted thither by the promise of big wages, rather than of steady employment.

In this connection a word of comment in another line may not be amiss. The newspapers and magazines, the billboards and the railroad folders nowadays are chock-full of alluring advertisements of the wonderfully rich farming lands of the far western state. Land is advertised at a price sometimes exceeding the value of stable eastern farms, but huge crops are assured. Many an eastern man has left a fairly good chance for prosperity, and has lost. It perhaps is the heritage of the pioneers, this desire to move a little farther on. When Indiana was the frontier there were many families who constantly moved on, hoping, always hoping for a little better outlook. And while these pioneers of yesterday—and those of today, in well-worn packing up and migrating they were passing by some good chances to become comfortably well-to-do at home. Indiana offers many opportunities just as good as and a great deal better than the land of canaan to the west. There have been Indians who have gone west and yet have decided that "God's country" is in Indiana.

Bird's Eye Views.

Some of those stories of the way Col. Roosevelt treated magnificent campaign contributors sound like efforts to scare George W. Perkins.

New York Thrillers

The adage that "the truth is stranger than fiction" receives a frequent confirmation in the doings of a big city like New York, where there is literally something happening out of the ordinary all the time. Nor is this strange, for in an aggregation of several million people it is inevitable that the forces of romance and tragedy should operate over a wide range and produce some extraordinary results. Take for example the gradual development of the tale of police corruption and officially inspired assassination that carries within it possibilities of a cataclysmic political upheaval.

Nearly every aspect of it is suggestive of the invention of a skillful novelist. Indeed it is assured that phases of this widely amplified crime will be presented in books and on the stage in short order for nothing more vividly dramatic has ever been concocted through invention than this complex and far reaching crime.

The other day, too a minor crime was committed with a setting of the sort in which the writer of lurid melodrama for the cheap stage revels.

An Italian gangster seated at a table in a drinking place run by a countryman, had received warning that he was on the black books of his organization. He was then idly thumbing a pack of cards, and leaving the room for a few moments he laid the pack on the table. Upon his return he found one card turned face upward, the four of hearts. He knew the hour of reckoning was at hand and tried to identify in the company assembled the men who had been designated to do his dirty work. Presently one arose and

C. Goodwin, Famous Comedian, Whose Injuries May Prevent His Ever Acting Again.

Nat C. Goodwin, the actor, may never again be able to act as a result of injuries received in a recent boating accident. At first it was believed that Goodwin's hurts were not of a nature to permanently incapacitate him, but it is now reported that internal injuries have been found which it is thought will prevent him from using his legs. The illustration shows Goodwin's latest posed photograph and the actor made up as "Oliver Twist," the part in which he was last seen on the stage.

approached him, and then the marked man knew but he did not shoot as quickly as the other and he fell with a bullet in his brain.

Behind a dry and apparently uninteresting petition to revoke letters testamentary just filed with the surrogate of New York is a story of alleged crime that would furnish the material for two or three thrillers.

A lawyer is virtually accused of having induced a client, an Austrian woman, to accompany him on a boat ride on a New Jersey lake in July, and then "capsizing her into the water and thus causing her death. It is charged that he later faked a will naming him administrator and forged to a waiver of citation the name of the dead woman's mother a resident of Austria. This attention to legal details however, was not skillfully done, inasmuch as the woman in Austria had died some five years before the filing of the purported waiver. Not only is this crime attributed to him, but the lawyer is virtually accused of having contrived the disappearance of a young Irishman, a little more than a year ago in order to obtain possession of money that the client had entrusted to him for investment.

He is also mentioned as the possible slayer of the daughter of another client six years ago. From the two earlier cases the man has managed to emerge with out serious difficulty, and it may be that in this latest affair the most that can be done is to convict him of fraud in connection with the probating of the will.

The case does not attract as much notice as it would if it were not for the all absorbing interest of the Rosenthal crime, and its accessory disclosures. It is just one of the developments of routine life in one of the biggest cities in the world.

The Government Workers

President Taft's praise of the faithful, skillful, intelligent government employee who have built up the machinery of national administration during the past 125 years uttered in the course of his remarks before the convention of post office workers at Fenwick Hall is justified by the facts.

Notwithstanding all the handicaps of political patronage and the evil influence of the spoils system the employees of the United States have been of exceptional high character and ability. During recent years a great improvement has been effected through the working out of a merit system of appointments and retentions, but as yet much remains to be done to produce ideal conditions. The public service is today good in point of personnel, despite the fact that there is no method by which the elder from the duties placed upon a living competence during the remainder of their lives. The United States is practically alone of all large employments in its failure to devise a means of encouraging workers to remain in its service and to assure them generous provision in their old age.

The condition is a reflection upon the congress of the United States which has been made acquainted with the facts by the President in terms of reports from heads of departments and bureaus who have shown in the most convincing manner that the work in their branches of the government service is handicapped by reason of the retention through human motives of men and women who have served long and faithfully and valuably and have become experts in their particular line, and are no longer able to discharge the duties through no fault of their own.

During the session just closed the answer of congress to their representations was a proposal to limit the government service tenure to seven years, involving the dismissal of all older workers, but leaving wide open the door of political preferment.

Fortunately President Taft stood steadfastly in opposition to this measure so directly hostile to the principle underlying the merit system and so assuredly destructive of efficiency in the public service.

The hope persists that ultimately the people (throughout the country) will appreciate the business considerations which urge the adoption by congress of some mode of clerks' retirement, and will instruct their representatives to place the government in the position where it cannot merely command the services of the most efficient and faithful workers but can hold them permanently with the promise of protection and retirement—Washington Star.

CAMPAIGN COMPARISONS

Oh, would it not be great to hear
Some good old fashioned speaking,
With just enough of human cheer
To ease the wisdom seeking?
The old time speaker seemed to note
And strove with jest or anecdote
To lend a touch of humor.

Sometimes his anger was turned loose
Against a foe collective;
But he was sparing in the use
Of personal invective.
For then a man who went too strong
In speaking or in writing
Might find his valiance called, ere long,
To face some real fighting.

For milder manners tempt us now
To rap another fellow
Because our customs won't allow Resort to the duello.
And so the public car is grieved
By a pursuit of glory
Relentless, harsh and unrelieved
Even a funny story!—Washington

Charcoal in the Ice Box.

A piece of charcoal in the ice box will take away the disagreeable "ice on the porch, where ants are apt to will attract all the ants, and you can easily remove them every day by removing the piece of bacon.

BIG FIELD FOR NEW HAMPSHIRE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Being Played at the Abenaki at Rye Beach--Down to Finals Today.

The annual golf tournament for the championship of New Hampshire is being played over the links of the Abenaki golf club at Rye Beach, and the qualifying round which was played Friday forenoon brought out the largest field in the history of this tournament, with practically every club in the state represented. The local Country club had a good representation and out of the eight who qualified for the championship round five were members of this club, and three of them are left in the semi-finals. The qualifying round was for the first eight to qualify for the Rollins or Championship cup, and the second eight for the President's cup and the third eight for the Rye Beach cup. Match play was taken up during the afternoon and this forenoon the semi-finals will be played and this afternoon the finals eighteen holes in each event. In addition today there will be a handicap tournament for which there will be a good entry.

The Country club team won the team championship and again take possession of the Cant's trophy for the third time. The local club had three teams entered and the first team won out, with Abenaki second. In the qualifying round Jesse P. Guilford was medalist with a 73, and C. W. Bass landed in a 77. These were the only two to break eighty.

In the match play in the afternoon Guilford and Chase of Concord had a hard match, being all square at the eighteenth hole, but Guilford won the extra hole, his mashie approach dropping in.

C. W. Bass, who has won the championship three times, was put out in the first round by W. J. Kershaw, who played a great game. Crosbie, the runner up last year, also dropped out in the first round. G. A. Place, the present state champion, did not qualify, being one of six who played off a tie for two places in the first eight and Chase and Cooper came through this.

Portsmouth has two men in the second division left and one in the third. The matches this forenoon will be Guilford vs. McDonough, Cooper vs. Kershaw, Tarbell vs. Place, Rutherford vs. Broughton, Hubbard vs. Stewards, Washburn vs. Watson.

The summary:

HEADACHY, BILIOUS, UPSET? "CASCARETS"

Bilious Headache Means Bowels are Clogged and Liver Stagnant

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow with dark rings under your eyes, your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean, and ill tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleansing up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A ten cent box from the druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

MAINE ORATORY ABOUT OVER

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 6.—The activity of the platform speakers and party newspapers continues during the closing hours of the Maine State campaign. Before midnight tomorrow the final arguments will have been made to the voters, and the balloting will begin Monday soon after day-break.

Never have so many speakers of National prominence taken part in a Maine campaign as have appeared on the stump this year. The Democrats, especially, have had the aid of eminent campaigners, such as Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, Democratic candidate for Vice President; Speaker Champ Clark, Senator Pomerehne of Ohio and Congressman Burleson of Texas and Ansberry of Ohio, and others.

Republican National policies have been presented by Congressman Hill of Connecticut and Utter of Rhode Island and Ex-Gov. Yates of Illinois.

Gov. Frederick W. Plaisted, Democratic candidate for re-election, and his Republican rival, William T. Haines, are the two busiest men in Maine. Gov. Plaisted, who spoke in Bath last night, arranged to speak at Oldtown tonight, and deliver an address in each of three cities in his own county of Kennebec tomorrow night.

Mr. Haines is to appear at two Kennebec County cities tonight. He will make two speeches in Somerset County tomorrow.

The principal State issues of the campaign have been the ever-present question of State-wide prohibition and economy in the management of State affairs. Gov. Plaisted asks endorsement of his administration on the ground of economy.

The Republicans argue that under Gov. Plaisted the tax rate has increased. The Democratic answer is that an increased tax rate was necessary to pay the debts left by the last Republican administration.

CLAIMS MISREPRESENTATION

Claiming misrepresentations, Chas. J. Gidden of Boston, well known in this city, brought suit for $75,000 in the Suffolk superior court yesterday against Harry L. Burrage of Newton. Mr. Gidden says Mr. Burrage induced him to purchase a large number of shares of stock in the Boston & Worcester Street Railway Company upon the alleged misrepresentation that the company was about to be bought by the New York New Haven & Hartford railroad.

He further alleges that Mr. Burrage promised to indemnify him for any losses on account of buying the stock in the event that the purchase by the New Haven was not carried out. He says the stock has depreciated.

FALLS AT MIDNIGHT

Writer Describes Wonders of Yosemite by Moonlight.

Had Thrilling Experience When He Ventured Back of Waters to Admire the Dim Velled Grandeur of the View.

Mr. Muir tells of an exciting adventure that once came unexpectedly to him when he was enjoying the Yosemite fall by moonlight. "A wild scene but not a safe one," he says, "is made by the moon as it appears through the edge of the Yosemite fall when one is behind it. Once after enjoying the night song of the waters and watching the formation of the colored bow as the moon came around the domes and sent beams into the wild uproar I ventured out on the narrow bench that extends back of the fall from Fern Lodge and began to admire the dim velled grandeur of the view.

"I could see the fine gauzy threads of the fall's filmy border by having the light in front, and, wishing to look at the moon through the meshes of some of the denser portions of the fall, I ventured to creep further behind it while it was gently wind swayed without taking sufficient thought about the consequences of its swaying back to its natural position after the wind pressure should be removed.

"I was in fairyland between the dark wall and the wild throng of illuminated waters, but suffered sudden disorientation, for, like the witch scene in 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' I was in an instant all was dark. Down came a dash of spent comets, thin and harmless looking in the distance, but they felt desperately solid and strong when they struck my shoulders, like a mixture of choking spray and gravel and bit of halibut bones.

"Instinctively dropping to my knees, I gripped an angle of the rock, curled up like a young fern frond with my face pressed against my breast, and in this attitude submitted as best I could to my thundering bath. The situation was quickly realized. How fast one's thoughts burn in time of stress! I was weighing chances of escape. Would the column he swayed a few inches away from the wall or would it come yet closer? My fate seemed to depend on a breath of 'idle wind.' It was moved gently forward, the pounding ceased and I was once more visited by glimpses of the moon. But fearing I might be caught at a disadvantage in making too hastily a retreat, I moved only a few feet along the bench to where a block of ice lay. I wedged myself between the ice and the wall and lay face downward until the steadiness of the light gave encouragement to rise and get away.

"Somewhat nerve shaken, drenched and benumbed, I made out to build a fire, warmed myself, ran home, reached my cabin before daylight, got an hour or two of sleep and awoke sound and comfortable, better, no worse, for my hard midnight bath."

TWO BOYS WHIRL ON SHAFT

Yell Till Machinery Stops, and Then Escape Alive at York, Pa.

York, Pa.—Caught by a belt in the Knoch flour mill at Mount Wolf, Gilbert Beattie and George Knudsen, boys of the neighborhood, were badly injured and only escaped death through the prompt action of the miller in shutting down the machinery.

Both boys were whirling upon the shaft when their cries attracted attention. The Beattie boy had one arm almost torn from its socket, and his companion was severely bruised.

IN THE JUNGLES OF MALAY

Hunter of White Rhinoceroses Has Dangerous Fox to Contend With—Animals Attack Man.

Singapore.—Of the three great islands of the Malay peninsula, a big game resort, Sumatra is said to be the best, Borneo the worst. In Sumatra all the great mammalian varieties are to be found, the tiger, the elephant, rhinoceros, tapir, orang-outang and simian. In Java, the elephant, tapir and orang-outang are missing, but the rhinoceros and tiger are represented.

In Borneo all these large animals are unknown now, though doubtless they existed there in former days. Sumatra, offers less inducements to the general order of visitors than the other two mentioned above for several reasons.

The Suluks will find the traveling very bad in such regions as have no roads. For hours, sometimes, he will have to wade waist deep in slimy slush, not infrequently finding himself, like the Irishman in the story, "up to the ankles in mud," but, as he forgot to mention, "head downwards." Added to this, he must be prepared to view everything through a perfect haze of mosquitoes. Such is the home of the white rhinoceros, and thither the hunter must venture who wishes to get a shot at him. This, it may be remarked, is by no means synonymous with bagging his pachydermatous majesty. Indeed, he often finds that not turns the tables on his pursuer.

This monster is said to be the only animal that will attack man unprovoked, and considering that, unwieldy though he looks, he can go as fast as a horse, the encounter is no joke. The retreating hunter's best course is to seek safety up a tree; though, unless it is a pretty stout one, this will not better his position much. Even if it is, he may be "treed" there for a considerable time. Unless a European is quite fever-proof and provided with special firearms, this branch of sport is better left untried.

Monkeys abound in endless variety in all these islands, but especially in Borneo. The peacocks, pigeons of various kinds, and a very handsome pheasant, also several water birds, waders and lovely kingfishers. There are said to be no less than 240 species of land birds known to inhabit this island of Java, while at least 40 are peculiar to it. On the other hand, no less than 16 genera found in the adjacent island are absent from this one. Rhinoceroses, leopards, wild dogs and other small game are to be met, and deer are abundant, but there are no antelope or goats.

NEW CURE FOR LOCKJAW

Baltimore Physician's Treatment Successful in Nine Cases He Has Tried.

Baltimore, Md.—The survival of Bernard Myerly, nine years old, a victim of lockjaw resulting from a stone bruise, has increased interest in the method of treatment used in the case of Dr. Pearce Kintzing. This is the ninth of a series of lockjaw cases in which Dr. Kintzing and his assistants at the Franklin Square hospital have used a new plan of treatment with success.

The Myerly boy, as well as the other victims of the disease, had serious attacks, marked by stiffness of the neck, locking of the jaws and convulsions. The remedy is a solution of alcohol of ten per cent strength, diluted to suit the ages and administered by hypodermic injections deep into the muscles.

The injections are made at intervals of about three hours at the start, with longer intervals as the patients rallied. The full adult dose used is equivalent to about one grain of pure crystalline phenol, ten drops of the ten per cent solution. To avoid soreness, in some cases one-half of the solution diluted is injected and then the other half injected in another place.

NEED OF CARPETS FOR ROADS

English Expert Recommends Use of an "Elastic Skin" on the Highways.

A lecture was recently delivered by a member of the board before the Royal Institute of London on "The Road—Past, Present and Future," according to Consular and Trade Reports. The lecturer said the problem was to find the best mode by which a road should be constructed so that its surface would not be broken by traffic, so that the transit might be easier for both passengers and goods, a road which would form neither puddle holes nor exude mud from vehicles and create no dust when the weather was dry.

One thing was universally recognized, that the road of the future should be a truly bound road in which, whatever kind of stone was used, the stone should be held together so that it would form a crust. The lecturer suggested that what he called a carpet or an elastic skin should be adopted as the covering.

The carpet, he thought, should be made of bituminous material mixed with sand and placed on the roads in various thicknesses, according to the nature of the traffic. It should go on in liquid form, solidifying quickly, but always remaining resilient and compressible, and so integrating with the crust of the surface below.

The advantage of such a carpet, it was said, would be to permanently protect the crust, and, just as a carpet on the floor softens the step, so would this carpet for the roads silence the noise and reduce the shock of rolling vehicles. It was admitted that the original cost of a road so laid would be more than that of a mud bound road, but spreading the cost over a series of years it would probably not be so great, since the crust of the road itself would not have to be renewed.

Sadly Disillusioned.

A certain young man of tender heart has lost his faith in mankind. Some years ago he did a favor for a friend, who, to show his appreciation, presented him with a pipe of meerschaum persuasion, wonderfully and marvelously wrought and bearing date of a hundred years before. The young man treasured this pipe, which was to him a masterpiece. And whenever the blue smoke curled upward from its bowl his heart swelled with the thought of the generosity and goodness of the human race, for he had been told when the pipe was handed to him that a pawnbroker would advance three dollars on it, thus proving it to be worth at least a ten-spot. Doing favors, he thought, surely furnished recompense. And then one day he broke the stem. He took it to a tobacconist with whom he was well acquainted and asked to have it mended. "It's such a treasure," he explained, "Notice the work on it and the date." The tobacconist smiled. "My boy," he remarked, "they turn these out by the barrel and sell them for ten cents."

Killing Cut Worms.

You can easily get rid of cut worms around sweet peas by pouring strong soap suds about the roots and picking up the worms which will come scrambling out of the earth at once. Drop the worms in the suds and it will kill them. Do this half a dozen mornings in succession, and you will be rid of them.

Remarkable.

Willis—He is a remarkable man and the best bod-carrier in the world. Willis—No great glory in that. Willis—Ah, but he has never written a magazine article on bod-carrying, nor delivered a Chautauque lecture on bod-carrying, nor even done a bod-carrying act in vaudeville. Puck.

IN A WINTER LAND

Norway's Iron and Locked Fjords and Dazzling Glaciers.

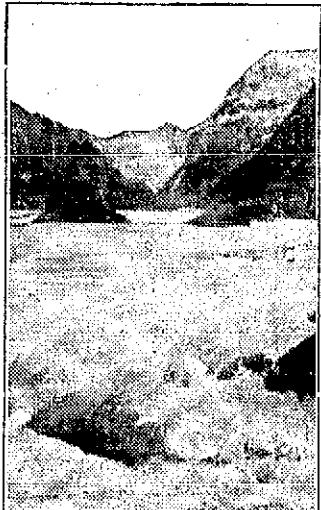

Boas Abound With Cod; Line Can Be Dropped in Fifty Fathoms of Water and Will Not Touch Bottom, Owing to Fish.

Copenhagen, Norway.—A commission to investigate iron ores and their mining and reduction in certain parts of northern Europe found me on a bleak November day aboard the trim little steel ship Astrea, a post steamer of the Hergenshae Dampskibsselskab.

The journey up the coast was most interesting one. The ship coasted the fjord and glacier planed rocks of what is, literally, an ironbound land, for the rocks of Norwegian mountains for a distance of more than five hundred miles north and east from latitude 66 contain a considerable proportion of iron mineral; it is true that in most places this is too lean to be now available for commercial use, but its totals are staggering to the imagination. With abundant water power at hand, and with water transport in all the markets of the globe, who will have the hardihood to say that some time these deposits may not be made use of? We passed the mouths of fjords cut deep into the interior; glaciers, brilliant in the sun, stretching their widths across the distance. We saw the Norwegian cod-fishing industry, by which no less than fifty million cod are annually taken; and, at Svalbard, we met hundreds of vessels of the fishing fleets. These seas off the Lofoten islands swarm with cod, and Baedeker says that at times and places hereabouts a line thrown into 50 fathoms of water will not reach bottom for the backs of the fish.

It is the sea that supports northern Norway; without its harvest life would be impossible, and the government so fully recognizes this fact that it has established complete telegraph and telephone communication between the Lofoten and the mainland and upon many of the outlying islands has wireless stations for communication between the fleets and the shore. Svalbard is a town of two or three thousand and fisher folk, but it has its water mains, its electric lights, its sewers, its cables and its well stocked shops. We passed Narvik, the most northerly railway terminus in the world, and threaded the inland passages to Hammerfest.

At Vadso the next morning I changed to the local steamer Veranger, and spent the day crossing the great fjord of that name. The cabin was a mite of a hole well aft, and crowded by women and babies; the deck was unprotected, and the wind was bitterly cold and raw. How well I remember that I spent the day alternately freezing in the lee of the pilothouse and thawing under the shelter of the smokestack! And there had been no opportunity for a meal between a supper on the Astrea the night before and another that evening, when I sat down in the chilly room of the hotel at Kirkenes—which is Sydvaranger.—Dwight E. Woodbridge, in Engineering Magazine.

SAVINGS TIED UP 30 YEARS

Old Housekeeper's Long Effort to Regain $1,100 From Priest's Estate.

Trenton, N. J.—An effort is being made by Mrs. Katherine Logue of this city to recover $1,100 from the estate of the late Rev. Father Miesle of Bueking Ridge. Mrs. Logue was the housekeeper for the priest and entrusted her savings to him thirty years ago. She was suddenly called to Ireland and before she returned the priest died.

The money passed into the hands of the executors and for years Mrs. Logue has been trying to get possession of it, but she has no evidence that she gave it to the priest. Monsignor John H. Fox has now taken up the woman's case and will make an effort to get the money.

Negro Lad's "Fowl" Plot.

Springfield, Mass.—A negro boy has discovered an unfailing method for securing a chicken to grace the Sunday dinner table. His scheme is to break an egg, stolen from the hen house, over the chicken's head and then tell his mother he caught the fowl eating eggs. That's all.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO NAVY YARD EMPLOYEES

Contract Awarded.
The contracts for furnishing ship-stores for navy vessels at the yard for the next quarter was awarded this week. The meat and fish go to John Holland, the butter, eggs, etc. to F. H. Hobbs & Company and the fruit to Arthur Dodes. There were five bidders, all local firms.

Two Sent to Concord.
Two navy prisoners from the Anthony were taken to Concord today for a term of five years each.

To have Electric Machinery.
The steam machinery now used to operate the dry dock Calson will be removed shortly and electrical apparatus installed in its place.

Sergeant Edwards Back.
Quartermaster Sergeant Edwards of the marine guard, who was sent with the detachment to Cuba in June returned to duty here today.

Two Engine Tenders.
Two engine tenders were called today for duty in supplies and accounts.

The public works department and machinery division clerical force bring out their baseball teams at 5 p. m. Wednesday on the playground.

The Herald Hears

That if the young Emmels are as fast at bowling as they are at tug of war, the rest of the teams may as well put away their playthings.

That the Bull Moose party are to send a lot of editorial orations to be state.

That the navy department is still busy trying to locate that stolen metal at the navy yard.

That it's a safe bet that no junk man here got next to that haul.

That the railroad will now give us some excursion rates to the lakes and mountains.

That we ought to beat Concord two out of three in the championship series.

That a well known South End boatman took an unexpected plunge in the river this morning.

That Dan Caswell of the firm of S. Newton and Co. was the hero in the rescue.

That the state board of health are prosecuting the vendors of sort articles on fair grounds, who are using saccharin.

That a few of them have been caught with the goods.

That former assistant secretary of the navy Frank W. Hackett, has arrived at Newmarket from Washington.

That he is one of the best posted men on navy matters in the country, and he can see no good reason for any such quiet spell at this station.

That a choice bit of scandal is going the rounds.

BIG MONEY ON FIELD DAY.
Dover Parish Event a Very Successful Undertaking.

Over $2,000 was realized from the parish outing of the St. Mary's church, Dover on Labor Day.

The entire amount has not been ascertained as yet as there are several more to hand in money which will probably greatly increase the total. It may be easily seen that the affair was highly successful and it was without a doubt one of the greatest of its kind which has been held in this section in many years.

RAILROAD NOTES.
An extra passenger train with the Veteran firemen of Berwick Somersworth passed through here this morning on their way to Salisbury to operate the dry dock Calson will be removed shortly and electrical apparatus installed in its place.

ELECTRIC CARS COME TOGETHER

Car No. 23 of the Portsmouth Streetcar, in charge of Conductor Fuerhahn and Motorman Reddinsdale which left Market Square at 12:35 this Saturday noon was in collision with the main line car at the junction of Middle street and Miller's avenue.

So far as could be learned none of the passengers was injured, although those on the Plain's loop car were given a shaking up.

The forward end of Car No. 23 was considerably damaged, but the car to Rye is said to have escaped without any damage.

Slippery rails and failure of the brake to work is said to have been the cause of the accident.
